There are new several new places to chow down in Woodbridge — all under one roof.

On Saturday, June 19, The EPIQ Food Hall welcomed hundreds of visitors for a grand opening celebration complete with a live DJ, face painting, a raffle, and the unmistakable aroma of food from all over the globe. Customers packed the venue to get a taste of the new food hall, a new business that seeks to bring a unique culinary experience to Woodbridge.

Located right across from BJ's Warehouse in Noblewood Plaza, just off Prince William Parkway, EPIQ Food Hall features 14 cuisines prepared by local proprietors, with seating for 390 guests over 13,000 square feet, on two floors. The establishment is the second largest food hall in the Washington, DC region in terms of square footage and is the largest food hall in terms of guest seating.

EPIQ Food Hall's Culinary Partners offer an array of artisanal, fast-casual cuisines, aiming to help answer the age-old question: what's for dinner?

The full line-up includes Bonfire Chicken, Jammin' Island BBQ, Kiki's Gourmet Soft Serve & Taiyaki, London Chippy British Street Food, Mr. Big's Seafood, Oki Bowl, Pho Harmony & Grill, Southern Flare Soul Food, Stacks Signature Sandwiches, Teddy's Taco Shack, Trattoria Elise Brick Oven Pizza & Gourmet Pasta. It also has Q Bar Lounge and Sweet Bakehouse Café for those who need an alcoholic drink or dessert.

“Our overarching goal is to provide a warm and welcoming social destination where the community can come together to meet and relax while enjoying great food and drink,” according to principal owner Michael Kim. “Friends and families will no longer have to agree on where to eat. EPIQ Food Hall is visually appealing, with enticing aromas and inviting spaces, all against the backdrop of music, videos, and the buzz of guests having a great time.”

As people flooded each of the different cuisine venues, staff hustled to deliver gourmet menu items. One man ordered the Baja Asada Taco from Teddy's Taco Shack. Sliced medium rare, the marinated steak was used to fill a taco, complete with chili lime coleslaw and black beans on it was assembled to perfect in a container placed on a metal tray.

Customers can take their meal and sit down in front of one of the 16 large screen TVs. In the center, there is a large multi-screen 12 foot-tall video showing international soccer. Various channels were on throughout the building. A second floor offers customers a quieter dining experience. Two rentable private party rooms allow customers room to relax with friends and family.

The event drew Neabsco District Supervisor Victor Angry and Stephanie Ospino from Rep. Gerry Connolly (D-Fairfax, Prince William) to cut the ribbon with Kim and his team.

“The ingredients to life are good family, good conversation, and good food. EPIQ Food Hall has created that right here today. I am so happy they are here. This is a concept that Prince William County really needed.... What you have here is a gourmet well rounded, well-thought-out experience.” said Angry.

The EPIQ Food Hall plans on hosting events throughout the year to provide engaging entertainment for guests. According to the venue's website, events such as Trivia contests, live music, karaoke, theme nights, movie and sports showings are in the works.

EPIQ Food Hall is located in what had been a Habitat for Humanity retail store, and before that, a Food Lion grocery store. It is just the first phase in their overall plan to create major dining and entertainment destinations for the entire region.
